

The Importance of Role Models for Entrepreneurs

Someone to Look Up to

Every business owner has been inspired by someone in their life, whether it's a leadership titan or a family member. Here, five entrepreneurs reveal their No. 1 role model in business and the insight that led to a bottom-line benefit.

Arthur J. Logan

Kate Logan, Founder of Upper Montclair, N.J.-based Logan & Company, Inc.

Role Model: Her father, Arthur J. Logan, Jr., 79

Why: "His honesty and integrity. My dad also always worked six days a week and he just gets the job done; I run my business with the same work ethic."

Bottom-line benefit: "As a bankruptcy administration specialist, I get clients through referrals and they come to me because there's an innate trust that I'll get things done. We're available 24/7 for clients, so it gives them comfort that we'll work under some incredible timeframes."